

United Nations Inter-Agency Coordination Group on Mine Action

Intersessional Meeting of the Convention on Cluster Munitions

Statement on Storage and Stockpile Destruction

Geneva, 22 June 2015

Delivered by Mr. Bruno Donat, Chief, Geneva Office, UNMAS

Mr. President,

The following statement is delivered on behalf of the Inter-Agency Coordination Group on Mine Action (IACG-MA)¹, comprising 14 United Nations entities involved in mine action.

The United Nations should like to thank the coordinators, Albania and France, for their work on this section of the Dubrovnik Action Plan.

The United Nations welcomes the fact that stockpile destruction is proving quicker and less complicated than originally anticipated by the negotiators of the CCM. To ensure the continued successful implementation of stockpile destruction obligations, the United Nations is interested in the plans by States Parties to destroy their stockpiles of cluster munitions, like many of the twenty-three States that have done so to date, well ahead of their eight-year deadline.

The United Nations takes this opportunity to congratulate Japan for the completion of the destruction of its cluster munitions stockpiles on 10 February 2015.

Article 3 provides for more than destroying stockpiles of cluster munitions within eight years. States Parties with stockpiles of cluster munitions should start by identifying how many cluster munitions and submunitions are located in their stockpiles, and follow-up with the planning for their destruction. These measures should be taken soon after the entry into force of the CCM for each State.

Progress in implementing Article 3 obligations should be duly reflected in the respective annual transparency reports, as rightly stressed in the draft Dubrovnik Action Plan.

Countries experiencing difficulties in identifying their stockpiles and in organizing their destruction should recourse to their right to seek and receive assistance, including through the United Nations, as provided by Article 6 of the CCM.

Thank you.
